

Camp the Last Holiday Weekend of Summer. Pennsylvania Campsites Still Available for Labor Day Weekend Pennsylvania Campground Owners Association Encourages Families to Make Labor Day Weekend Plans Now

EAST STROUDSBURG, PA , August 25, 2026

Summer may be winding down, but there is still time for one more camping getaway. The Pennsylvania Campground Owners Association (PCOA) is encouraging families to camp the last holiday weekend of summer and enjoy Labor Day Weekend at one of Pennsylvania's campgrounds.

Labor Day Weekend is traditionally one of the busiest camping weekends of the year, but campsites are still available at campgrounds across Pennsylvania for the upcoming holiday weekend.

"Labor Day Weekend is a great opportunity to enjoy one more summer getaway with family and friends," said Jason Vaughan, Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Campground Owners Association. "Whether you're looking for an RV site, a traditional tent campsite or a cabin, there are still opportunities to get away and enjoy Pennsylvania's outdoors over the holiday weekend."

From the Pocono Mountains and Pennsylvania Wilds to the Laurel Highlands, Dutch Country and beyond, Pennsylvania's privately owned campgrounds offer a wide variety of camping experiences. Campers can enjoy swimming, hiking, fishing, campfires, planned activities and, most importantly, time together outdoors.

Find a Campsite for Labor Day Weekend

Planning to camp for Labor Day Weekend? PCOA has compiled a list of Pennsylvania campgrounds reporting that they still have sites available for the holiday weekend.
